Lower Stokes Mill Road Crumbles

Falling Bank Threat To Home

Marcos Perez Jimenez

THE VIEW from Mike Kostna's picture window is beautiful—but it is only a few inches from destruction and possible death.

At one time it overlooked a section of Lower Stokes Mill Road (Leg. Rte. 450-64) and the placid, pastoral loveliness that is Brodheads Creek.

Today it still overlooks the stream. But the section of Lower Stokes Mill Road is gone.

It began on Dec. 20 when heavy rains deluged Monroe County and sent the stream to its highest point since August, 1955. Brodheads Creek swerved into the steep embankment on which Mike Kostna's home is built.

The surging water cut tons of earth from the base of the cliff. The next day, the gravel and sand at the bottom of the bank began to slide downward into the stream.

A long string of highway guardposts and railing fell with it. So did utility poles sunk in the earth along the road.

Then huge chunks of the macadam highway dropped too. Within hours the road was closed. Danger signs and roadblocks were set up to keep unknowing motorists from plunging down the 70-foot drop to the stream.

On top of the hill Mike Kostna and his family grew more and more frantic as the hours passed. Their house was only a few feet from the edge of the hill above the roadway.

Finally the cave-ins seemed to stop. The road remained "pretty much the same" for days; then two weeks passed by and nothing more happened.

Appeals for help from the Department of Highways in rebuilding the road or inspecting the scene brought a team of officials in from Harrisburg and Allentown. Lower Stokes Mill Road was only one of a half-dozen roads in the area badly damaged by the December rain.

Lower Stokes Mill is a State highway. It is, therefore, the duty of the State Highways Department to put it back in a state of good repair.

But Highways Department officials have to work jointly with the Department of Forests and Waters. The latter has flood control plans for the Brodheads and plans for highways running along streams must be worked out jointly officials said.

The Department of Forests and Waters began to take action almost immediately, however.

High Praise
Kostna had nothing but the highest praise for Forests and Waters officials and workers yesterday.

"They came in and dredged out the channel of the stream. They did a beautiful job on that. Wonderful," he said.

He pointed down the steep embankment. There, dozens of feet below, was an earth-fill "wall."

"They put that wall up down there with the gravel and rock they took from the other side of the creek. It really worked, too. It kept the water from coming out of the creek and hitting the bank last time the rain came," Kostna said.

But the giant embankment was still crumbling. This week it began again.

"Wednesday morning at about 2:45, my house shook all over," Kostna said. "At first I thought it was a lightning storm of some kind."

"Then it shook again. I put on my clothes and went out and looked," he said. "The rest of the road right in front of the house had dropped away. And the utility pole was about ready to go."

Kostna called the utility company. They sent a guard who stayed at the scene the rest of the night. Next day the company cut the top of the pole off. They left wires unattached and suspended in mid-air so they would not be torn loose if the pole fell.

State Agent Suggests Local Planning

MOST of the preliminary work in setting up Monroe County planning and zoning "can and should" be done by a local lay commission, a State Department of Commerce agent told County Commissioners yesterday.

Commissioners conferred with Donald Livingston of the Department's Bureau of Community Development regional office in Scranton. Following the meeting at Court House, Livingston was taken on a tour of the county by Commission Chairman John R. Lesoine.

"The lay planning commission appointed to serve within the county should determine what the county needs before a professional consultant or engineering firm is called in," Livingston said. "Most of the planning can and should be done by the lay planning group. They're people who live here, they know what the area is and what's needed. If they don't know, then they are qualified to find out before anyone from the outside is brought in."

"There is a practical point beyond which the laymen's group cannot go. Almost everyone realizes that," he said. "Laymen cannot, for example, prepare maps which are needed later on after initial planning has been done."

Ordinances
"But the planning commission can set up any ordinances needed. No consultant is necessary for that and I don't think a consultant would do it even if he was asked to," Livingston said.

"Once the planning is really begun, an engineering firm may be needed," he said. "But there are things the planning commission should do before they ever think about calling in a consultant."

"They should determine at least the general plan for the county-wide area. They should also set the scope of the whole planning idea within their area," he said.

Lesoine said that "the planning commission here in Monroe County has taken just the opposite view. They want to hire an engineering firm to come before they've even tried to set up goals for planning."

"They've asked me to spend $72,000 over a three-year period to get an engineer to come in and do the work," Lesoine said. "They've told us we would get half of the money back from the Federal Government."

"I don't think you would if the planning were done on a purely county-wide basis," Livingston said. "It's my impression the Federal Government will participate for regional planning only. Of course, if the Planning Commission could convince them that this is really a regional job rather than just a county project, the Federal Government might come in."

Livingston told Commissioners that "almost any county needs planning and zoning of some sort, but our office is not pushing planning. We merely offer our help and advice in any way we can possibly give it."

He explained that the Bureau of Community Development has been in existence more than two years in Pennsylvania.

Livingston said that the "primary purpose is to help communities and municipalities set up planning." Later, in response to a query from Willard Quick, second majority commissioner, Livingston said that his office is willing to work with the county planning group or with boroughs or townships which wish to establish planning and zoning.

The tour of the county began in Stroudsburg and included Delaware Water Gap, Minisink Hills, Shawnee, East Stroudsburg's industrial areas, Stroud Township, Mount Pocono, Pocono Lake, Blakeslee, Effort, Brodheads, and Hamilton Township.

Livingston agreed to meet with Commissioners or the Planning Commission at any time in the future to discuss either planning or zoning with them. The regional consultant was asked to meet with Commissioners yesterday by Lesoine, after a letter from Harrisburg outlining the new service was received by Commissioners.

It's All Over

Jimenez Flees Venezuela

CARACAS, Venezuela, Jan. 23 (AP)—Dictator Marcos Perez Jimenez fled today and fled into exile. Angry crowds besieged secret police headquarters and 60 bodies were reported found in the building after a 10-hour fight.

More than 100 persons previously had been reported slain since a general strike and uprising that began Tuesday.

About half the reported victims in the secret police building had been prisoners of the security forces.

A witness to the siege said it was believed many were killed before the surviving guards surrendered under protection of army tanks.

Siege Ends
The siege ended at 3 p.m. 10 hours after the crowd had gathered on the news that Perez Jimenez had fled to asylum in the Dominican Republic.

His family and closest aides went with him.

His friend, ex-dictator Juan D. Peron of Argentina, was reported fleeing by car for Colombia to seek new refuge.

A wild dawn celebration was touched off by the fall of Perez Jimenez, ruler for 10 years, and the news that a new five-man military junta headed by Rear Admiral Wolfgang Larrazabal was sworn in to succeed him.

Then an angry, vengeance-seeking civilian mob began gathering about the huge gray security police building on Morelos Plaza, near downtown Caracas.

It was then 5 a.m.

A number of political prisoners were released.

But the crowd swelled to about

2,000 and angrily stormed the building.

The secret police opened fire. Two civilians were reported killed in the first attack.

The army rushed in about 150 troops in a vain attempt to clear the area.

Security Agents

Two security agents trying to escape the building were reported beaten to death.

The army pulled up six tanks. They fired machine guns at the headquarters and the secret agents answered with counterfire.

The crowds ranged around the building setting fire to automobiles of the secret police.

Two soldiers who attempted to rush the main door of the building were cut down by bullets.

The army finally arranged a surrender. It cleared the crowds away by driving tanks continuously around the building. Five army buses drove in and picked up the secret police survivors.

The crowd then rushed into the bullet-shattered building, ransacked and burned the files and began recovering bodies. The dead were reported found on several floors of the building.

At least six civilians were killed in the siege and in attempts of civilian mobs to get into Carcel Modelo, a prison which held other political captives.

The secret police, most hated department of the dictatorial regime, had been reported holding 600 political prisoners. Torture was among charges voiced by police critics.

A civilian Patriotic Junta which had led the strike-revolt raised

Hoffa Wins Right To Boss Union

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—A compromise court settlement today permitted James R. Hoffa to take the presidency of the Teamsters Union, with a board of "watchdogs" looking over his shoulder.

U. S. Dist. Court Judge F. Dickinson Letts dissolved a temporary injunction he issued Oct. 23 against Hoffa taking over as union president.

He did so in approving a settlement worked out by attorneys for the Teamsters Union and dissident members who had brought suit to block Hoffa's accession to the presidency.

While union bosses made some concessions, including agreeing to the watchdog committee to keep an eye on union affairs, Hoffa clearly emerged the big winner since he took over the helm of the giant union forthwith.

Restraining Order
Only a court restraining order had prevented Hoffa and other officials elected with him at the union's convention last October at Miami Beach from taking over, and the order was dissolved today as part of the settlement.

They had been sworn in some time ago. Hoffa succeeds retiring President Dave Beck. Both had been involved in Senate Rackets Committee disclosures last summer.

The three-member committee, to be known as a board of monitors, will derive its main power through the 82-year-old Judge Letts.

Union leaders will nominate one member and the dissident Teamsters will choose one. These two will select the third, a neutral who will act as chairman.

If the first two are unable to agree, Judge Letts will name the third member. All three will have to be approved by the judge in any event.

If any of the three thinks the union is doing anything contrary to the terms of the consent order signed by Letts, he is free to tell it to the judge. Even if all goes well, the monitors must make a semiannual report to Letts who retains jurisdiction over the suit filed by 13 dissident Teamsters in the New York City area.

Everyone concerned expressed some satisfaction over the outcome.

Edward Bennett Williams, attorney for Teamsters bosses, called the settlement beneficial both to the public and to rank-and-file unionists. Thomas J. Dodd and Geoffrey P. Schmitt echoed Williams' views.

Frank Kennedy, one of those who brought the suit, said it proved that union bosses are not immune from court action if their members don't like the way they're acting.

Sputnik To Make Passes

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 23 (AP)—Sputnik II makes four passages visible in the United States after sunset Friday night, the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory said tonight.

All passages are in the evening at the present time are in a north-northwest to south-southeast direction at an elevation of about 4885 miles.

The height makes the satellite visible for over a 1,000 miles on either side of the overhead pass.

The first passage over eastern Canada starts about 5:35 p.m. (EST) and should be visible to New Englanders.

House Passes Increase In Debt

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—Legislation authorizing the Treasury to borrow an extra five billion dollars if it needs it was passed by the House Thursday and sent to the Senate.

The measure would raise the national debt ceiling temporarily to 280 billion dollars. It would be effective from the time of enactment until June 30, 1959.

The House passed the bill 328-71 after voting 275-114 against a proposal to limit the extra borrowing authority to three billion dollars.

Chairman Byrd (D-Va.) has announced the bill will be considered by the Senate Finance Committee next Monday.

Secretary of the Treasury
Anderson asked for the temporary increase to give the government elbow room in paying its bills and meeting maturing obligations.

Anderson told the House Ways and Means Committee last Friday that government cash balances have been distressingly low at times during the last six months.

The move to hold the borrowing limit to 278 billion dollars was made by Rep. Byrnes (R-Wis.), who argued that this would act as a curb on government spending.

Voting for the five-billion-dollar increase were 186 Democrats and 142 Republicans. Against it were 29 Democrats and 42 Republicans.

During World War II

Congress raised the debt limit to 300 billion dollars, the highest ever. Actual borrowing never reached that figure.

In June, 1946 the limit was cut back to 275 billion, then raised temporarily to 281 billion in 1955-56. In 1956-57 the limit was set at 278 billion. It dropped back to 275 billion last July 1, at the start of the 1958 fiscal year.

Interest on the national debt is estimated at 7 1/2 billion dollars annually for fiscal 1958 and 1959.

Sharing In Profits To Be Key Issue

DETROIT, Jan. 23 (AP)—The United Auto Workers special convention today gave an enthusiastic go-ahead to Walter Reuther's plan to make profit-sharing a key demand in the 1958 contract negotiations.

The 3,000 delegates climaxed six hours of debate with an overwhelming endorsement of the profit-sharing proposal which calls on auto companies which make a substantial profit to share it with workers and consumers.

Opponents led by Carl Stellato, president of the giant Ford Local 600 and a long-time Reuther foe, fought unsuccessfully to have a shorter work week with no decrease in pay made the No. 1 demand in forthcoming negotiations. Stellato lost a fight to force a membership referendum on the profit-sharing suggestion.

Long Contracts
The UAW's three-year contracts with the Big Three of the auto industry—General Motors, Ford and Chrysler—expire about June 1. Negotiations with them generally set the pattern for the rest of the UAW's contracts.

Reuther, speaking immediately after the convention had approved the plan which he as president, and the International Executive Board proposed Jan. 13, called for an end to intraunion arguments on whether profit-sharing or the short work week should be the No. 1 demand.

"There never have been any differences in the UAW when we sit down at the bargaining table," he told the cheering delegates.

Committee Feels Perjury Committed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—Senate rackets investigators filled the air today with angry cries of perjured testimony about what Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.) called "considerable embezzlement and theft" of funds of the San Francisco Operating Engineers Union.

McClellan said there had been "flagrant perjury." Sen. Mundt (R-SD) said, "I expect somebody is going to jail."

Victor Swanson, deposed boss of the big local, had just finished a point-by-point denial of testimony of other union officials linking him to corruption.

Swanson said the testimony was "the coerced or bought or inspired work" of William Maloney, president of the powerful 270,000-member international union, and Joseph Delaney, its secretary-treasurer.

Hatching Charge
He accused them of hatching "a calculated conspiracy to destroy me" in order to divert committee attention from "their own deep-seated corruption."

The enfeebled, 74-year-old Swanson, suffering from a heart condition and nearly blind from acid thrown in a 1944 union row, contended that whatever excesses and wrongs he may have committed, "they do not remotely resemble the testimony you have heard."

Good Morning!

Unused ability is no better than an unread book.

Ike Calls For 12-Point Program To Halt Pilfering

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—President Eisenhower today called on Congress to pass a 12-point program to guard against union fund pilfering and keep labor organizations out of the hands of dictators.

The President said most union officials are decent, honest Americans but nobody can ignore recent "disclosures of corruption, racketeering and abuse of trust and power in the labor-management field."

He accordingly recommended requiring all unions to file full reports with the government on their financial and welfare fund operations and internal organizational affairs. Most such reports would be open to the public.

Eisenhower asked for stern criminal penalties for union fund stealing, for failing to file or falsifying required reports, and for bribery by either union or employer representatives.

Amendments
Specifically Eisenhower asked that the Taft-Hartley law be amended to prohibit collusive payments to union officials by "employer agents or representatives," as well as those made directly by employers. This would cover outsiders hired to act as go-betweens in labor-management dealings.

Eisenhower said there is need of reassurance that working people "are more fully protected from dealings between representatives of labor and management which have the effect of preventing the full exercise of their rights to organize and bargain collectively."

Unions failing to file true and proper reports would be subject to losing their established bargaining rights, their federal labor law privileges, and their exemption from federal taxes.

Inspectors Smash Huge Dope Ring

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—After 18 months of undercover work, federal agents today smashed a big tristate dope ring and seized a record 35 pounds of heroin. Seventeen persons were arrested in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Diluted for illegal retail sale, the dope would be worth an estimated two million dollars.

"This represents the largest total amount of heroin ever seized in any case by the Bureau of Narcotics," U.S. Atty. Paul W. Williams said in federal court where some of the alleged ring members were given bail hearings. Bonds set for them ranged as high as $100,000.

Italian Source
Agents also seized three briefcases full of records during the raids. They said these indicated Italy as the source of narcotics for the ring.

The deported gangster, Lucky Luciano, often has been described as the kingpin of an international narcotics ring with headquarters in Italy. However, he repeatedly has denied any trafficking in dope.

Peter Casella, 50, of Ventnor, N.J., was described as the leader.

Van Zandt, Smith Gain Support

JOHNSTOWN, Jan. 23 (AP)—The Johnstown Tribune-Democrat in an editorial today endorsed Pennsylvania Auditor Gen. Charles C. Smith for the Republican gubernatorial nomination and Rep. James E. Van Zandt for the GOP nomination to the U. S. Senate.

Four Klansmen Sent To Jail

GREENVILLE, S. C., Jan. 23 (AP)—Four Klu Klux Klansmen were sentenced to prison today for their part in the beating of a Negro deacon who offered aid to a destitute white family.

Andrew Marshall Rochester, 30, president of the Greenville chapter of the South Carolina KKK, got the stiffest sentence of the four, six years at hard labor.

General Sessions Court Judge James M. Brailsford, Jr., offered Rochester a choice of serving his sentence at the state prison at Columbia or in Greenville County.

Rochester served a year in 1947 after being sentenced for involuntary manslaughter in a shooting. Judge Brailsford said he was taking Rochester's record into consideration.

Rochester and Wade Henry Howard, 24, both were charged with conspiring to commit assault and battery and with assault and battery. Howard drew a three-year sentence.

Conspiracy
Jack Bentley, 24, and Robert E. Waldrop, 28, were convicted of conspiracy. Each was sentenced to one year.

The all-white jury deliberated nearly four hours before returning its verdict last night.

J. Wiley Brown, defense attorney, said he might ask for a new trial for Howard, but gave no indication that he would appeal the cases.

The men were charged in the beating of Claud Cruell, 58, Baptist deacon who had rented a house on his property to Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood Tucker, both sickly and penniless, and their seven children who range in age from 15 months to 12 years.

Last July 21, the Cruells drove the Turners to a hospital at nearby Marietta where Mrs. Turner was admitted. Turner stayed at his wife's bedside and the Cruells returned to their home, promising to care for the Turner children.

That night, Cruell testified, a band of armed white men stormed into his home, threw a chain around his arm, dragged him into the dining room and beat and kicked him even after he had fallen to the floor. Mrs. Cruell, 54, was taken away by the men but later was released unharmed.

Oil Industry Continues To Operate In Venezuela

HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 23 (AP)—Oil industry sources here reported today there has been no indication that Venezuelan oil operations have been affected in the fall of President Marcos Perez Jimenez.

No Trouble
"It appears that both sides realize that for the welfare of the nation the oil industry should be protected," said a spokesman for one firm with Venezuelan interests.

Spokesmen for other companies said there have been no reports of trouble in the oil zones, which, for the most part, are some distance from Caracas.

Several thousand Texans are working in Venezuela for various oil companies holding exploration and production concessions.

His fellow-worker, Leonard Barthelmas, was in another part of the bakery and was injured only slightly. Also hurt was a bakery worker, James Jordan, 61.

Officials said the half-demolished bakery would be a tomb for Livingston at least until tomorrow. Workers dared not disturb the rubble to remove him until the walls still remaining were shored up.

Pocono Creek Dam Removal May Aid Flood Control Project

State Ready To Cooperate On Work

COUNTY Commissioners were told yesterday that agreement by Tannersville residents to removal of a century-old dam on Pocono Creek may have solved a large part of the flooding problems in that village.

County Solicitor L. A. Achterman reported on a conference he had earlier this week in Harrisburg with Dr. Maurice K. Goddard, Secretary of Forests and Waters.

"I informed Dr. Goddard that Pocono Township supervisors and residents of the area had agreed to allow removal of the Pocono Creek dam," Achterman said.

"Dr. Goddard said that the Department of Forests and Waters is perfectly willing to cooperate to do anything it can to prevent any further flooding in the area," he said.

Great Deal
"He said, also, that if residents are willing to get rid of the dam that would do a great deal to help solve their problem," Achterman reported.

The solicitor then went on to point out that Dr. Goddard had indicated Department workers "were not allowed to do what they wanted to do after the 1955 flood on Pocono Creek in Tannersville." At that time residents (and supervisors) opposed removal of the dam.

The dam is located approximately to the rear of the Pocono Diner. It has been used to channel water supply into a reservoir-dam in front of the Pocono Township school.

Attention was again called to the serious situation on the creek during the Dec. 22 storm. Water spread out across Route 611 below this site and along the section near the school, water rose to within inches of flood level.

Color Pictures
Commission Chairman John R. Lesoine noted that he had received a supply of color pictures back from the plant. The photographs were taken during the December flooding.

Lesoine intends to use the photographs as part of the program for a "town meeting." Exact date for the conference for township residents has not yet been set.

But Achterman told Lesoine yesterday that "I discussed this possible meeting fully with Dr. Goddard. He assured me that someone from the Department will be at the public meeting in Tannersville whenever a date is set."

U. N. Key To World Disarmament

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Jan. 23 (AP)—Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld declared today the U. N. will remain in one way or another the main arena for breaking the East-West deadlock on disarmament.

He indicated he is considering a trip to Moscow for talks with the Russians, who have announced they will boycott any negotiations in the newly enlarged U. N. Disarmament Commission.

Hammarskjöld made his views known at a news conference—his first since he returned from talks in London with British Foreign Minister Christian Pakenham.

Framework
He said the U. N. remains the main framework for disarmament talks, and he knows of no government which has taken an opposite view.

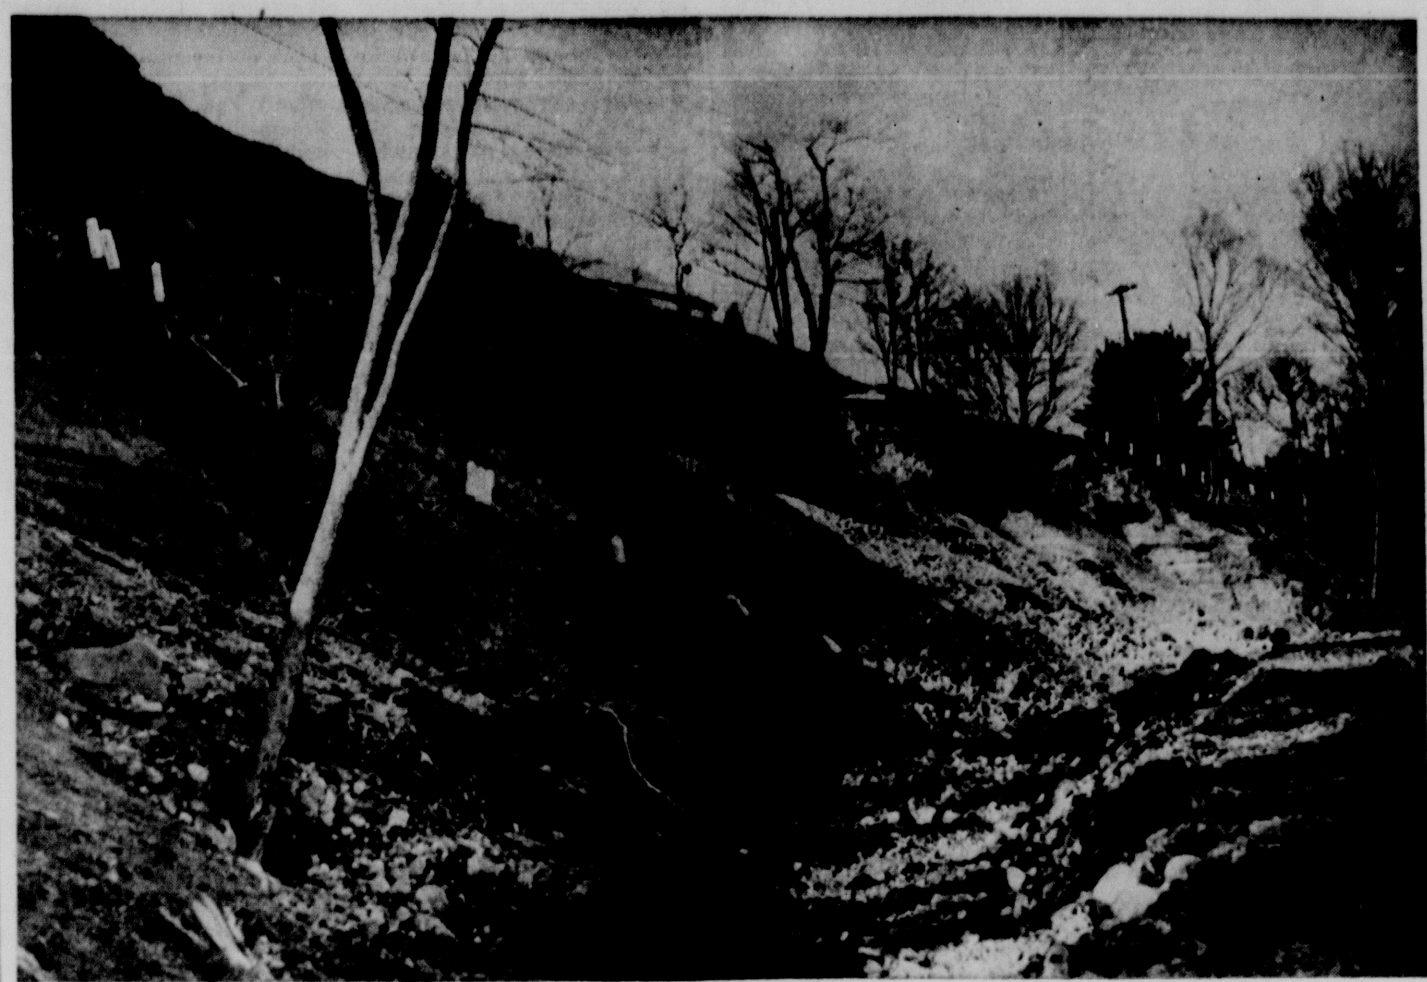

The four ways in which U. N. machinery could be used in the disarmament picture, he said, were his own office, the Security Council, the General Assembly and the Disarmament Commission.

He said diplomatic talks on disarmament were going on all over the world and he was in touch with them in his role as secretary general. He added he had never been pessimistic, but that he was concerned over the loss of time in resuming negotiations. He asserted this was unavoidable when careful preparation must precede action.

He welcomed President Eisenhower's suggestion for international cooperation on a science-for-peace program, calling it a sound and hopeful development.

He said this suggestion and proposals for dealing with outer space could be considered outside the general talks on disarmament. Dulles has proposed the creation of an international commission, preferably under the U. N., to see that objects sent into outer space are used for peace.

Blamed For Blast
NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Jan. 23 (AP)—The Niagara Junction Railroad tonight blamed a tank car containing 10,000 gallons of lacquer solvent for the big blast that damaged its yard and injured 183 persons yesterday.

DOWN FROM THE HILL—Thousands of tons of dirt, sand and gravel have plunged down this embankment which once held section of Lower Stokes Mill Road. Now road has disappeared up to higher hill on which home of Michael Kostina stands.

Falling Bank Threat To House

Yesterday at 11 a. m. Kostina's wife had called him at work. She had just felt the house tremble again. She had gone out and looked. Another large section of the highway had fallen down the bank.

Kostina said he had called Rep. H. L. Cleveland in East Stroudsburg. Cleveland "had been away on vacation," Kostina said, "but he told me he'd see what he could do."

"He told me later he called a man named Raymond Campbell in Harrisburg at the Highway Department," Kostina said. "I talked with Ciampi (Joseph Ciampi in charge of the local highways shed) and he says there isn't anything he can do until he gets orders from Allentown."

Kostina said that "apparently they've approved putting the road back in, but no one here has been ordered to go ahead yet."

"They've got to do something pretty soon. I don't know what they can do, but if they'd just bring in some gravel or dirt or something and build the bank up down below so it slants down gradually instead of dropping off like this..."

Mike Kostina's voice trailed off. He is a man who owns a house he is proud of. His back lawn has the well-tailored look of a country club. His home is neat and pretty and almost utterly lacking in ostentation.

And, at the moment, only six footsteps separate Mike Kostina's home from a drop into sheer oblivion.

"You don't know what it's like. Every time you feel the earth shake, you think: that's it, we've got to get out of here," he said.

His voice, was tired as he turned to go back into the modest living room with its picture window and its beautiful view.

"If any more of it falls, we will have to go. What else can we do?" he said.

Stroud Union Schools Superintendent Speaks Before Student Education Group

THE STUDENT Education Assn. held its regular monthly meeting in the college auditorium at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College recently. Charles Brayford, president, presided.

A short business meeting was held. The secretary, Jane Slutter read the minutes of the previous meeting. Barbara Hendrie, the treasurer, gave the treasurer's report, and Jeannette Miller, publications chairman, made a report on the articles of interest that were currently appearing in the journals which each member receives.

Following the short business meeting the president introduced Earl Groner, Superintendent of the Stroud Union School District.

Groner made a short talk on the "Dos and Don'ts While Being Interviewed."

He presented some of the faults that new teachers often make while appearing for interviews for employment. Then he pointed out the good features to remember to insure a favorable impression.

Climaxing the introduction Groner acted out an interview of a prospective teacher. William Richards was the candidate who humorously depicted the Don'ts of being interviewed.

Another interview was staged during which Miss Joan Chamberlain portrayed an actual interview and demonstrated the proper procedures for a candidate to use.

Groner emphasized three important points in his conclusion: (1) The superintendent is a human being. He is only interested in obtaining the best teacher he possibly can for his school system. (2) The interview works both ways. The candidate teacher is in reality also interviewing the superintendent. (3) The superintendent seeks to learn the background and interests of the candidate teacher. The prospective teacher also seeks to find information about the school system, the teacher's benefits, and the community.

Brayford then introduced Richard Hillyard, Parliamentarian of the Student Education Assn. Hillyard proceeded to explain the background for a skit which was designed to demonstrate the rules of parliamentary procedure. Also appearing in the skit were: Faye Dalmeyer, Jane Romani, Barbara Cook, Marguerite Pescuma, James Fenton, Homer Hadley, William Neal, Francis Kinder, and Dick Hillyard.

Wooddale Curve To Be Repaired

THE STATE has approved relocation of the sharp "S" curve on the Wooddale Road.

Department of Highways officials from Allentown said yesterday that the road will be "straightened out" to remove a hazardous driving condition.

The sharp curve has been the object of much controversy during recent months. A group of Wooddale and Analomink residents drew up petitions for its removal or relocation.

Consultants
Consultants from the Department of Highways came into the area to survey the road, after petitions were forwarded to Harrisburg. Engineers went over the highway and drew up plans for removal of the curve.

According to an Allentown District Five announcement yesterday to Monroe County Commissioners, these plans have been approved. There is no indication, at present, when the job will be put out for bids.

Cost Of Living At Record High

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—Living costs closed out 1957 at a record high, staying in December at the same peak mark they reached in November.

In reporting this day, government officials said they could hold out no hopes that the long climb in consumer prices has leveled off. They forecast a January jump in food prices, although somewhat lower costs for new cars, clothing and house furnishings.

H. E. Riley, chief of the Labor Department's living cost section, said living costs would have advanced in December, except that new car prices fell somewhat after their big climb in November when 1958 models came out.

The government living cost index for December remained unchanged at 121.6 per cent of the 1947-49 base period. This was the same as the record November figure and 3.1 per cent above December 1956.

Detailed Finding
Some detailed finding reported: New car prices had risen 11.5 per cent between October and November. As dealers began giving higher discounts on 1958 models, prices declined 2.3 per cent in December.

Clothing, mainly women's wear, also declined in December. But most other living cost elements rose. Food increased only slightly, with higher prices for meats more than offsetting lower prices for fresh fruits and eggs. The Florida crop freeze is expected to be felt heavily in higher January food prices.

Costs for housing, coal, fuel oil, household appliances, television sets, newspapers, reading and recreation, all rose. The hike in medical care was attributed in large part to higher costs of aspirin, used extensively in common headaches and colds.

The December index level brought pay raises of 1 to 3 cents an hour to about 650,000 workers in electrical, aircraft and over-the-road trucking industries.

Pottsville
Strike Ends

POTTSVILLE, Jan. 23 (AP)—A six-week bus strike in lower Schuylkill County ended today with 54 drivers getting the pay increase they asked for, but losing five paid holidays a year.

The contract signed with the East Penn Transportation Co. gives the drivers $1.40 an hour—a 10 cent hourly wage boost—and $75 bonuses covering 1957 holidays for drivers employed since last Dec. 10. It also provides that future disputes will be submitted to arbitration.

The contract, however, reduces the number of 1958 paid holidays from six to one and also reduces guaranteed overtime pay for special runs from three to two hours.

Truman Burnett, owner of the Pottsville bus line, said the company was "pleased" with the new contract.

Police Chief Glenwood T. Lewis identified the drivers as Clarence Luscombe, 204 Miller St., Bethlehem, and Kenneth R. Klingel, Flicksville. Damage was estimated at $200.

Loan Tentatively Set For New Area Industry

THE STROUDSBURGS were virtually assured of another new industry yesterday when the Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority tentatively approved an $18,000 loan to the Wilkra Co. of New Hyde Park, L. I., to help finance construction of an industrial plant in West Stroudsburg.

Wilmer Krautter, owner of Wilkra, is planning to erect a $60,000 building on the former Christman tract, off W. Main St., in the near future.

Monroe County Industries Inc., which purchased the land with a $15,000 fund it had collected through public subscription last Fall, reported that the new industry will employ between 30 and 40 persons, mostly men, in the manufacture of diesel parts and warehouse trucks.

This is the smaller of two industries which will locate on the plot purchased from Robert Christman. The larger firm will erect a $750,000 plant and employ between 150 and 200 persons, according to J. Horace Strunk, executive secretary of the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce. Monroe County Industries is the holding corporation formed by the chamber.

Strunk and M. F. Crowe, chamber president, said the PIDA loan represents 30 per cent of the total cost of the new Wilkra building. The balance of the financing will be handled by local financing agencies, he added.

Construction will be started as soon as possible, according to present plans.

Portland PTA Forms Scout Troop

Tall Cedars Initiate New Members

TALL CEDARS of Lebanon, Pocono Forest, initiated two new members at their meeting last night at the Odd Fellows Hall, Main St.

George E. Miller, grand tall cedar, presided at his first meeting since taking over the office in December.

Plans were made for a district ceremonial to be held in Stroudsburg in the Fall. Represented will be the forests in Allentown, Bethlehem, Easton, Phillipsburg, N. J., Factoryville and Quakertown in addition to Stroudsburg.

Arrangements
The committee on arrangements will consist of Miller, Roy E. Lesoine, Edward A. Weber, Clarence E. Selp and Fred P. Eyer.

The Supreme Forest convention will be held in May at Philadelphia. Appointed to the committee to arrange local participation in the event were Stanley H. Heller and Edgar Van Why.

Light lunch was served after the meeting by the Cedarettes.

Rail Firm's Profits Drop

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 23 (AP)—Pennsylvania Railroad profits for 1957 were less than half that earned in 1956, it was disclosed today as directors of America's biggest rail carrier deferred dividend action until the business picture is clarified.

The P. R. reported net income of $19,066,885 last year, equivalent to $1.45 a share, compared with $41,545,435 and $3.16 in 1956. This is $22,488,550, or about 54 per cent, less.

We can submit excellent plans for special structures as Mausoleums, grave covers, or any "Custom Work" you may desire.

Automobile Runs Into Truck

ONE PERSON was slightly injured in a car-truck collision on Foxtown Hill, Route 611, at 4:30 p.m. yesterday.

State Police of the Stroudsburg barracks said William Gilliland, 23, of 1829 W. Main St., Stroudsburg, was driving north on the highway when he claimed he was blinded by the sun as he rounded a curve.

Strikes
Police said his car plowed into the rear of a truck operated by William Nelson, 38, Box 385, Stroudsburg.

Gilliland sustained a slight cut of the nose and a bruised right knee. Neither Nelson nor Raymond Stafford of Minisink Hills, a passenger in the truck, was injured.

Damages were estimated at $150 for the demolished car and $20 to the truck.

Same Smith, Shorter Chase

POTTSVILLE, Jan. 23 (AP)—Charles Smith, 27, drove his car back and forth in front of the state police barracks here today sounding his horn and making his brakes screech.

The police chased and caught him.

Police Car
It wasn't much of a chase however. While Smith was whipping up and down in front of the barracks a police car sneaked up and forced him to the roadside.

Last summer Smith led the police a much longer chase—15 miles—climaxed by his car overturning in the heart of town.

Today Smith was taken before an alderman who charged him with reckless driving and disorderly conduct.

Climber In New Sport

TRENT, Italy, Jan. 23 (AP)—Ski instructor Luigi Gosler likes the way Sherpa Tensing Norgan, co-conqueror of Mt. Everest, is taking to skiing.

"He's only an amateur at it," Gosler said. "But he's not a novice. He does pretty well."

Tensing, visiting this Alpine city, wants to learn how to ski well enough to give lessons at the Indian Mountaineering Institute at Darjeeling, where he is chief instructor.

He said this suggestion and proposals for dealing with outer space could be considered outside the general talks on disarmament. Dulles has proposed the creation of an international commission, preferably under the U. N., to see that objects

Support The YMCA

We hear so much these days about juvenile delinquency and are asked, "Why doesn't somebody do something about it?"

Well, there are agencies in the community which are trying to do something about it. They are striving to provide wholesome recreation and other activities for a generation of young people faced with countless temptations on all sides.

One of these character-building agencies is the Young Men's Christian Assn. Its work among the people it serves is oftentimes unspectacular and even unpublishable because of its very nature. But it nevertheless plays an important role in helping to make Monroe County a better place in which to live.

Situated in a new building made possible through the generosity of hundreds of residents of the county and with the financial help of the S. S. Kresge Foundation, the Monroe County YMCA is one of the finest community centers to be found anywhere.

It is a monument to the cooperative efforts of people who have the best interest and welfare of the county at heart. But the YMCA is not meant to be a mere monument of brick and stone and steel. It seeks to serve all those individuals—adults as well as children—who will avail themselves of the association's facilities.

Naturally, it takes money to operate the vast program which the YMCA undertakes throughout the year. Last year, the association had operating expenses totaling $48,066.25 and an income of $48,150.60, including $12,168 from the Community Chest.

The bulk of the YMCA's revenue is derived from memberships. Many of the community services performed by the association bring no income into the association. Some sources of revenue are limited as to the amount they can produce.

Therefore, the only way the YMCA can improve and expand the breadth of its services is through increasing the number of memberships.

The YMCA is now entering the last lap of its annual membership round-up. It has set a goal of 800 members and $8,000 in cash. Surely, those figures are not insurmountable in a county whose population numbers more than 35,000.

If everyone who claims a sincere desire to create a better environment for our younger generation were to take out a membership for themselves, or someone else who cannot afford one, the YMCA's campaign will top its goal with plenty to spare by next Monday night. And we will be assured of the continuous operation of an agency dedicated to providing a wholesome program for its citizens.

Opinions Of Other Editors

More Important Than Sputnik

Amid the legitimate anxiety over the significance of the sputnik, you may have missed a report on the results of a piece of American scientific research which for years to come may hold more importance for people—particularly children—than the fact that the Russians have shoved ajar the door to outer space.

We refer to the announcement of Secretary Folsom of the department of health, welfare and education that since the Salk immunization program began in the spring of 1955 the incidence of paralyzing polio has dropped 80%.

To date this year only 1,576 paralytic cases of the crippling and often fatal disease have been reported. That compares with 5,241 cases last year and 7,855 in 1955. Moreover, only 63 persons of the 28 million who received the full three injections were stricken with paralytic polio. (That would appear to make the vaccine 99,999,997% effective.)

So when Sovietskaya Aviatsia (Soviet Aviation) calls the launching of an earth satellite "the grandest scientific-technical victory of the USSR" and hails it as "primarily a victory of the Soviet Socialist system," it is fair to recall the triumph of Jonas Salk—and the fact that his victory was made possible by no government or political system, but by the dimes and dollars and dedicated effort of millions of individual Americans—Milwaukee Journal.

Open Primaries Likely

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg—Indications are that the May 20 primary this year will provide Pennsylvania's five-million odd voters with an opportunity to take part in one of the best "open primaries" in many a year.

A check-out of the candidates already in the field for the office of Governor, for example, illustrates the reason.

On the Republican side two announced candidates for the gubernatorial nod who have vowed to stay in the race "until the bitter end" are former State Senator John M. Walker, of Allegheny County, and four-time Secretary of Internal Affairs, William S. Livengood, Jr., of Somerset County.

These are only two of a bevy of "potential" candidates on the Republican side one or two of whom are expected to formally announce their candidacy within the next two weeks.

Thus on the Republican side the "open primary" appears to be more fact than fiction this year than in many a year past insofar as the gubernatorial race is concerned—with almost equally spirited contests in the offing on the U. S. Senate race.

Pennsylvania Democrats too are running in the open field race this year as they have not been able to do within the past two decades.

On the gubernatorial score, Green County's Lt. Gov. Roy E. Furman already has formally declared his intent to hew to the finish line come what may.

Allegheny County Coroner William D. McClelland has been sharpening his cross-country spikes in what is expected to be a formal bid for the Democratic gubernatorial nod.

On Capitol Hill it is expected that Philadelphia Mayor Richardson Dilworth will resign his mayorship and enter the Democratic gubernatorial race.

In all of this one point seems to be outstanding: Candidate entry has not been dictated or limited to the wishes of top party bosses in either party.

In other words, candidates this year, at least those who have announced so far, have done so in spite of what might be the wishes of party bosses.

It wasn't too many years ago that virtually no candidate entered the field without first obtaining the blessing of party brass.

In those years the open primary as such generally was viewed as passing from the scene.

In essence this year's primary would seem to flatly refute this contention—at least on the basis of developments so far.

Primarily this has been due to the waning influence, at election time, of the once-vaunted party leaders.

The independent vote is fast becoming a more and more strident factor. This very fact alone unquestionably has done much to bring the open primary move into its own.

To aspirants today a brass blessing does not approach the significance of yesteryear. Among the independents or organization-buckers there is a feeling of at least a "sporting chance" at this mid-twentieth century point.

The old line standard moth-eaten theory of refusing to run unless assured of organization backing is fast being tossed out the window.

The present candidate spurge illustrates the point. This year may well turn out to be one of the best open primaries of record—a choice vantage point for Pennsylvania's voters.

Respect For Us

General Nathan F. Twining's agitation before the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee had a military ring. He was annoyed with the committee for asking questions of military officers which the President had already answered. Precisely where else would a committee of Congress obtain the information if it did not come from those officers in the Pentagon who know the answers?

Does the Bureau of the Budget have a veto power over the acts of Congress as was established in the testimony of several witnesses? If so, he ought to read the law establishing the Bureau of the Budget and he will discover that it has no option but to obey an act of Congress, particularly an appropriations bill and that if the Bureau of the Budget diverts funds from purposes stipulated in an appropriations bill, passed by Congress and signed by the President, the head of that bureau is violating the law.

One of our difficulties today is that government tends to grow anarchic because there is an evasion of limitations placed upon various agencies by the Constitution. The Supreme Court has become legislative; the White House has become autocratic; Congress has become accustomed to be fearful of criticism, so that even Democratic Senators know-how to a Republican president and the other way around when the president is a Democrat.

Meanwhile the world has ceased to respect us for the very simple reason that we do not deliver when it is dramatically important to keep not only our promises but the hopes of the world high. I was minded of a memorandum written in August 1942 by Dr. Stanley K. Hornbeck, Adviser on Political Relations of the State Department, in which he said:

"... Until the end of 1941, the peoples of the Far East, whether they liked us (and the British) or not, had great respect for us and felt confidence in us. Events in the Far East—to say nothing of those in Europe—during the past eight months have greatly diminished their respect for and weakened their confidence in us."

Those were the words of an ignored prophet who saw what was ahead in Asia, in China, Japan, the Philippines, Okinawa, Indonesia. We poured not only billions of dollars into that part of the world; we buried thousands of American youth there and that we cannot forget even if we can forego the dollars.

It is not only in Asia that we face the severe loss of face because of Sputnik. The same is true in Europe where some countries are afraid to accept our missiles and rockets and even dollars. The same is true if the British or Canadians want to go their own way even when to go their own way is cutting off their noses to spite their faces.

In a word, we face the same difficulty that we did when we lost the Korean War. Countries always reassess their policies after a defeat and Sputnik was for us, the principal manufacturing nation on earth, a defeat. It is for this reason that Congress needs to pry into the secrets of the Pentagon which is not a gentlemen's club where old cronies get together to scratch each other's backs, but the central organ of the United States for the defense of which our lives and the future of our country depend.

The notorious Zweicker Case rubber-stamp and to be was precisely over this problem, namely how far may an officer go in telling the truth when he has been silenced by a superior. General Twining said:

"You can say it (the budget) is inadequate, and turn your suit in. We do not play that way. If you say it is adequate, then you do not feel good about that."

"In the military terminology, a commander makes a decision and if everybody starts bucking it, it is just no good, you have no military."

That ought not to be acceptable by the Congress which has a right to know the truth about the state of the nation. If Congress appropriates too little money or if the people hate to pay heavy taxes, it could be because the truth has not been made known to them. The truth is not known yet despite investigations and a plethora of speeches. Why did Russia Sputnik first? That is the question.

Control In Jeopardy

Washington, Jan. 23—Loss of the seat of the late Senator Matthew Neely (D., W. Va.) is making continued Democratic control of the Senate far more conjectural than the 49-47 party line-up indicates.

If the Democrats lose just one more senator, the Republicans will forthwith take over this branch of Congress.

That far-reaching eventuality would come about as follows: Gain of another senator by the Republicans, would mean a 48 to 48 party line-up. Automatically that gives Vice President Nixon the deciding vote. The Vice President can vote on all Senate ties—legislative or anything else.

In this instance, the GOP propose to regain control of the Senate.

That decision has already been made in their inner councils. President Eisenhower, Nixon, and Senate Republican leaders are unanimous on it.

For the remainder of this session, the instant a tie develops in the Senate, the GOP are set to vote themselves back into control of that chamber— which they lost in the 1954 election, during the President's first term.

First prize of such restored ascendancy will be resumption of all committee chairmanships.

It will also require Vice President Nixon's close attendance at Senate proceedings. He will have to forego plans for foreign traveling until the Senate adjourns in July or August.

Thirteen senators have died since January 20, 1953, start of the Eisenhower Administration.

For this period the annual toll is: 1953—3 deaths; 1954—6; 1955—none; 1956—2; 1957—1; 1958—1.

Politics—GOP—Vice President Nixon is writing three major addresses which he will deliver in behalf of the President's embattled proposal for a five-year renewal of the Reciprocal Trade Act. Nixon is spearheading the drive to put this legislation through Congress...

Representative Craig Hosmer (R., Calif.) signaled his appointment to the powerful Joint Atomic Committee with a massive outpouring of words. He issued a lengthy statement, giving a blow-by-blow account of his ten-year effort to win this coveted assignment, and then followed that up by filling 15 pages in the Congressional Record with his views on nuclear affairs. Highlight of Hosmer's tale of how he finally got named to the Joint Committee is: "Nor did (the) campaign stop with his fellow congressmen. It was also aimed at Administration officials, and influential private citizens known to have an interest in nuclear subjects." Representative James Devereux (R., Md.), Marine commander of the heroic defense of Wake, is his party's unanimous choice for successor to Governor Theodore McKeldin, who is barred from running again. Devereux, who retired as a Brigadier General, has been in Congress since 1951.

Politics—Democratic—Senator John Kennedy (D., Mass.) up for re-election this year, is making sure his constituents (and the press) are fully informed on his record in Congress. For that purpose, Kennedy is circulating a 7-page "Memorandum" detailing all aspects of his Senate record.

In an accompanying note Kennedy states, "You will observe in reviewing this Memorandum that principal emphasis has been placed on activity relating to Massachusetts and the welfare of her citizens. While I have spent a good deal of time and effort on national problems as a member of the Foreign Relations, Labor and Public Welfare and other committees, I have been ever mindful of my pledge to 'do more for Massachusetts.'" Representative Eugene McCarthy (D., Minn.) has about decided to try for the seat of Republican Senator Edward Thye. McCarthy has been assured of the support of Senator Hubert Humphrey (D., Minn.) and Governor Orville Freeman. A professor of political science and a best-selling author is going to try for Congress as the Democratic opponent of Representative John Heselton (R., Mass.). The academic-literary candidate is Professor James McGregor Burns, Williams College, who wrote the 1956 best-seller: "Roosevelt: The Lion and the Fox."

In the Works—The first subpoena has finally been issued by the disension-plagued special House committee, headed by Representative Morgan Moulder (D., Mo.) that was set up last year to investigate the major administrative agencies. The subpoena is for a Miami lawyer in connection with an alleged loan to a Federal Communications Commissioner. The subpoena requires the Florida attorney to give the probers his personal accounts and bank records. Statehood for Alaska is certain this year in the opinion of Rep. Leo O'Brien (D., N. Y.), chairman of the Subcommittee handling this legislation in the House. He is so sure of that he's offering 3 to 1 odds. Chief reason for O'Brien's confidence that Alaska will become the 49th state this year is Speaker Sam Rayburn's support. In the past, the powerful Texan either has been hostile or lukewarm. But this session, Rayburn is actively backing Alaskan statehood.

Good Evening Ladies!

Women Can Be Truthful

By Ken Duval

Why is it, asks one of my male correspondents, that a woman will be meticulous about the truth of any matter except her age? He is checking out the life of a lady he is thinking about marrying, and in this respect presents a refreshing departure from the usual pre-marital preparations.

He says he has asked her quite frankly about her past and has received frank answers, which convinces him that she is above reproach, as the saying goes. But he is certain she is lying to him about her age, and this worries him.

I don't quite see why a man who accepts a woman's story of her past, believing every word of it, should stick at the single point of her age. How does he know she is lying when she says the courthouse burned down and her birth certificate went with it? And if she confesses she was a war bride and fails to mention which war, why should the ugly suspicion enter his mind that it was the Boer?

Son, it is quite possible for a man to live with a woman for 30 years and still be confused when, and if, the doleful time arrives when he has to tell the lapidary what date to put on her tombstone. That is one reason why women are so satisfied with the law of nature which permits most of them to outlive their husbands.

I don't know any infallible way of determining a woman's age these days, if she doesn't want it known, and she has, as this gentleman's lady, a deep respect for the truth in all its aspects except this one. It is one of the strange quirks of feminine nature that a woman will make a tearful confession of the truth about her morals, shooting her husband or stealing jewelry, but lie like hell when asked her age, even on a witness stand and under oath.

Even Doctors Are Fooled Unless a husband was present at the birth of the woman he married, and some marriages I observe around here look as though this might have been the case, he can never be sure of her age, especially if they were raised in widely separated parts of the country. An experienced doctor knows that when a well-rehearsed lady comes into his office and says she's 26 she is lying, but even he can't pin down her birth date with any accuracy.

Some men, as worried as my correspondent, have tried some drastic measures to determine the truth about the age of the women they were thinking of marrying. A friend of mine invited a veterinarian, who was a good storyteller, to meet his fiancée. By pre-arrangement, his friend told his girl a very funny story and when she threw back her head for a hearty laugh, he took a good look at her teeth. This told him a lot and the marriage never came off.

Orson Welles, you may remember, did a magic act with Rita Hayworth in which he sawed her in half. I'll always believe that when he had done this he counted the rings, because the marriage broke up shortly afterward. I can't recommend this method unless a husband is a good magician because he may encounter trouble putting her together again.

If hands, elbows and throat line tell you nothing, son, you can relax, although these may well be deceiving because of modern renovating devices. If however, she lets it slip after a couple of martinis that she saw the boys march home from World War I, you have cause to ponder.

Painting Big Chore For Firemen

by Jim Riley

Delaware Water Gap firemen are currently hard at work giving the not-so-old fire house a new look.

The new look right now is on the inside. Firemen are busily giving the inside a coat of paint and planning other activities to improve the appearance.

They recently purchased a television set and are really going all out to give the fire house a "home" appearance.

The work should result in many hours of enjoyment.

Joe Churnock, Tobyhanna, recently returned from a vacation in Florida.

Joe is one of history's top basketball players at Coolbaugh High School. He played on that school's only championship team.

Joe Murray, major in the Marine Corps Reserve, recently completed a short tour of duty.

Murray, a teacher and coach at Barrett High School, is a resident of Canadensis.

Arthur Broadhead, of Cutler Ridge, Fla., visited his parents in East Stroudsburg and friends in that borough and Delaware Water Gap during a recent three-weeks vacation.

Art, an engineer for an aircraft company, is a graduate of Stroudsburg High School.

The Monroe County native, his wife and three children have been living in Florida for several years.

Mr. and Mrs. Pete Rockefeller, Delaware Water Gap, recently visited their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Hayman and two sons. The Haymans live in Baltimore.

Bill Walters was among the visitors at the Pocono Mountains League baseball meeting at Kunkletown this week.

Bill is a resident of Wind Gap.

Howard Nash has joined Delaware Water Gap's player piano duo.

Howard and neighbor, Bob Carlton, now both own this type piano and are threatening to open their windows wide during the Summer months. This move will give all of Delaware Water Gap a chance to hear the recitals.

Howard, we are told, is also a player piano engineer.

To make matters worse, we have also been informed that Howard is taking accordion lessons.

You poor people of the Gap. My sympathies are with you.

Try and Stop Me

—by Bennet Cerf

An executive had trouble finding a new secretary who would work more than 25 hours a week—she's got one at last. He thinks she's pretty smart, too—and submits this evidence to prove his point:

1. She says she's made a remarkable discovery about a fountain pen: if you dip it into a bottle of ink, you can use it just like any other pen, without going to all the bother of filling it.

2. On her job questionnaire she was asked, "What types of machine are you skilled in operating?" She answered, "Slot and pinball."

There's a line in the ocean where, by merely crossing same, you can lose a whole day. There's one on most every highway, however, where you can do even better.

MONROE County YMCA's annual membership effort pushed well past the half-way mark at the second report meeting last night.

Mrs. Alberta Yutz' division continued to lead in the four-way contest for top honors in the drive to enroll 800 members and raise $8,000 in cash.

Her workers last night reported 96 members and $857 for a grand division total of 224 members and $1,931.

In second place is the division headed by Thomas Kistler, which has a total of 86 members and $1,000.

Third Place

Alex Bensingers division is in third with 84 members and $830. The division in charge of Horace Walters has enrolled 74 members and raised $722.

The third and final report meeting will be held at the YMCA next Monday at 6 p. m. All workers are urged to attend so that all of the divisions can complete their tabulations.

Individual honors among the workers last night were shared by Mrs. David Katz and Mrs. Ann Wyckoff, each of whom enrolled 23 members.

John R. Wilson, executive secretary, said residents of the community who have not been approached by a campaign worker may turn their own and their family memberships over to the YMCA office and they will be credited to workers of their choice.

Campaign manager E. Holt Wyckoff, Jr., reminded last night's gathering that a number of classes are now forming at the YMCA and are open to all interested members.

These include a ballroom dancing class for adults, gymnastics classes for men and women, life-saving for juniors and seniors, sewing classes for junior girls and women, craft shop for boys, and a class in police and personality development.

Services For Mrs. Corbett

FUNERAL services for Mrs. Louise Kaley Corbett were held Tuesday in the Dunkelberger and Westbrook Funeral Home.

Burial was Wednesday in Greenwood Cemetery, Brooklyn.

Funeral services for Stewart W. Ace, Jr., were held yesterday in the Dunkelberger and Westbrook Funeral Home. Rev. Charles Staples officiated and burial was in Stroudsburg Cemetery.

Palbearers were: Harold Lightner, Frank Kasper, William M. Hostler, Jr., Herbert R. Buzzard, Frank Edinger and LeRoy Kaiser.

The pursuit was started by Sparta policeman Fred Selovnik, state police said, when he saw the station wagon back out of the Sparta Coal & Oil Co. grounds early today.

Newton firemen doused the blaze. Police said the car was demolished.

A passenger, James Judge, 18, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., was in fair condition at the hospital with burns of the face and hands and a fractured right leg. He was pinned in the wreckage until released by Lloyd Taylor, working at the nearby Tennent Chemical Corp.

Holm, of Midland Park, N. J., was thrown clear. He suffered fractures of the skull, nose and right leg.

State police said the station wagon went out of control on a slight curve as it approached the Lackawanna Railroad Bridge. It skidded nearly 300 feet, swung off the road, jumped over the embankment, came down on its side and burst into flames.

The pursuit was started by Sparta policeman Fred Selovnik, state police said, when he saw the station wagon back out of the Sparta Coal & Oil Co. grounds early today.

Newton firemen doused the blaze. Police said the car was demolished.

A passenger, James Judge, 18, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., was in fair condition at the hospital with burns of the face and hands and a fractured right leg. He was pinned in the wreckage until released by Lloyd Taylor, working at the nearby Tennent Chemical Corp.

Holm, of Midland Park, N. J., was thrown clear. He suffered fractures of the skull, nose and right leg.

State police said the station wagon went out of control on a slight curve as it approached the Lackawanna Railroad Bridge. It skidded nearly 300 feet, swung off the road, jumped over the embankment, came down on its side and burst into flames.

Lansford Official Claims Honest Turnpike Dealings

HARRISBURG, Jan. 23 (P)—The president of a Lansford chemical firm contended in Dauphin County Court today all his dealings with the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission were "absolutely honest."

Palmer Evans, 56, top executive of the B&W Trading Corp., is one of two persons on trial on charges of defrauding the commission out of $25,000 through shortweight chemical deliveries.

Edward McGinley, former chief of police in Nesquehoning, on trial with Evans, told the court earlier that in his opinion there was "some cheating going on."

Plead Innocent Both have pleaded innocent of the charges.

Evans said he became president of the firm in January, 1956, after the accidental death of Richard H. Evans, son of Thomas J. Evans, former chairman of the Turnpike Commission.

The witness said he has been treasurer of the company since its founding in May, 1953, and he owned one-half of the firm's outstanding stock at the end of the fiscal year, 1956.

Paraguay Shows Signs Of Progress

By Sam Adams

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Jan. 23 (AP)—Cloaked in an atmosphere of cautious optimism after years as the dormat of South America, tiny Paraguay is beginning to show signs of progress.

Little by little in this sparsely populated country come evidences of development, both material and intellectual.

The man on the street of Asuncion, although perhaps still barefooted, is facing the future with a much brighter outlook than he did three years ago.

Three major factors are involved in the "new era" for Paraguay: apparent political stability, a free trade economy, and the chance of an oil boom in the Paraguayan Chaco.

In the entire Paraguayan picture the case of political stability remains one of the most delicate facets, although the dictatorship of President Alfredo Stroessner appears strong.

Political Troubles

For years Paraguay was plagued with one political mess after another. This, coupled with the disastrous Chaco war, which drained her treasury and killed off many of her men, made progress an impossibility. However, during the 3-year-old Stroessner regime political strife has been held to a minimum.

Stroessner's dictatorship is like all Latin American dictatorships, past and present. There are no free elections, no freedom of speech or of the press. Secret police keep watch on potential political troublemakers. Anyone in opposition to the government is tossed in jail or told to leave the country.

Nonetheless, Stroessner seems to go out of his way not to anger the people. He appears more concerned with the welfare of Paraguay than in turning himself into a "little Caesar." He keeps a strong hand on his Colorado Party but, to date, has avoided pitfalls that marked the end for other dictators. As one man said, "Stroessner avoids mixing his politics too thickly."

The Army, Navy and police are treated with care. It is not unusual to see modern, comfortable barracks adjacent to a row of poor tarpaper shacks.

But the Stroessner era, whether iron-fisted or not, has gone a long way in giving Paraguay the stability needed to start progress.

The most concrete single accomplishment has been the establishment of a free trade economy. Until free trade was put into effect, the economy was smothered by the mountains of red tape in complicated import-export laws. The trade system favored certain large business groups that could afford to pay heavy duties. Small businesses were pushed under.

Prices High

Almost everything from bottles to brushes is imported. The cost of everyday household goods, to say nothing of industrial machinery, is far out of proportion to the standard of living. A tube of toothpaste costs around 50 cents. A housewife finds herself paying more deposit on a bottle than the beverage it contains is worth.

Two American companies, the Pure Oil Co., of Tulsa, Okla., and the United States International Products Corp. have gained concessions in the hot, jungle covered Chaco. A third company, Standard Oil of California, is negotiating for a concession.

Already nearly 30 per cent of the total area of Paraguay is encompassed by oil concessions. The companies are given complete rights to the oil and it is expected that full scale exploration and exploitation will begin this spring.

It is known that there is oil in the Chaco, but how much and of what quality remains a mystery. Many oilmen are of the opinion that hunting Chaco oil is, at best, a wildcat venture. It's a wild region and transportation is difficult.

There are other signs that Paraguay is reaching some degree of maturity as a nation. A multi-million dollar waterworks system will be finished by the end of this year to supply Asuncion with running water, as against contaminated wells. Housing projects are springing up throughout the city. Productivity in the cattle and timber industries is being stepped up.

con, Donald Hartman; Trustee, Robert Field Jr.

PORTLAND — They'll be "pickin' and singin'" in the local firehouse tonight!

They, in this case, are Wilma Lee, Stoney Cooper and The Clinch Mountain Clan, one of America's best-known "country music" bands, stars of the Grand Old Opry and Hickory records.

They'll come on stage at 8:30 p.m., Chief Bill Pensyl of Hook and Ladder Number One, which is sponsoring the presentation, said last night and they'll stay right there for two full hours of singing, instrumental music and comedy capers, all in the good, old-fashioned "country" vein.

Liquor Licenses Available In Coolbaugh, Stroud Areas

HARRISBURG, Jan. 23 (AP)—The State Liquor Control Board has reported there are 246 vacancies for liquor licenses, mostly in Southeastern Pennsylvania.

The board said population increases accounted for the vacancies. The Liquor Code provides for one new retail license for each additional 1,000 population or fraction. Hotels are exempt from the quotas.

The quotas were boosted on the basis of special censuses made in 1957 by the Federal Census Bureau.

The breakdown of the changed quotas by political sub-division, the first figure showing the present quota and the second the total quota after the increase:

Monroe — Coolbaugh Township, 1-2; Stroud Township, 4-6.

Northampton — Bethlehem 67-75; Forks Township 2-3; Palmer Township, 5-9.

Proves Audience On Other End

MERIDA, Mexico, Jan. 23 (AP)—Radio station XEMH wanted to prove to advertisers it had a lot of listeners. So it played one record over and over, 59 times.

Phone lines were soon jammed.

The management said it received 523 calls of protest in four hours. Experts reckoned this sampling means the station has 20,000 or more fans.

NEWSPAPERS + PEOPLE = ACTION

Every day when newspapers and people get together, things start popping. News stories, editorials and features constantly arouse readers to action. So does the advertising. Without it, as the lady says, "You'd never know about sales or where to buy anything."

Newspaper advertising differs from many other kinds because it is wanted. People not only look for advertising in the newspaper—they act upon it. They buy from it.

That's why more money is spent in newspapers than in radio, television, magazines and outdoor combined.

Over 58,000,000 newspapers are bought daily, providing news, features, information—and advertising. If it's action you want—action you'll get—from your advertising in the action medium, the daily newspaper.

All business is local... and so are all newspapers.

Catalog Distribution Underway

SEARS, Roebuck and Co. has begun distribution of its 1958 Spring and Summer general catalog Miss Cora Bisbing, catalog sales manager, said yesterday.

The new catalog weighing slightly more than four pounds, will be distributed to approximately eight million American homes, Miss Bisbing said.

Fashions for Spring and Summer of '58 occupy a prominent place in the new book with more than 200 pages being devoted to Sears' line of Paris-inspired women's fashions. The "chemise look," cool "sea colors" and large and small polka dots in prints highlight the fashion picture for spring and summer, Sears catalog reveals.

Several brand new merchandise items make their first appearance in the new Sears catalog. Among the many new products are: a top of the stove roaster for gas and electric ranges; a line of steel garages which can be assembled by the homeowner and a new radial saw for the home craftsman.

Flying squirrels are now offered by Sears, joining the many other animals offered by the company on the pet pages of the new catalog.

WILLIAM H. Arnold, 1942 Pocono Park Drive, Stroudsburg, has joined the Crowe Insurance Agency, Washington, St., East Stroudsburg as sales and service representative.

Arnold operated his own insurance agency for the past two years and in his prior connection he was recognized as one of the leading salesmen in the east for the company.

Arnold is a graduate of Stroudsburg High School and attended Scranton-Lackawanna Business College.

Arnold's friends and clients can contact him at the Crowe Insurance Agency.

LAST year was a good year for both the Scranton area and The First National Bank & Trust Company of Scranton — and "there is every indication that 1958 will be a good and prosperous year for the area and the bank" according to the report submitted by Frank E. Hemelright, president to the bank's shareholders. "We have tremendous faith in the city of Scranton and Northeastern Pennsylvania," Hemelright said.

At the annual meeting of shareholders this week, Hemelright disclosed that the "operating earnings exceed those of any year in the bank's history". Total operating earnings reached $4,648,421. In 1957 as compared with $4,134,643. In 1956. Net operating income, after taxes, climbed to $1,140,715. For 1957 as against $975,442 a year ago.

DELAWARE, Lackawanna and Western Railroad showed a deficit of approximately a quarter-million dollars on its December operations, and income for the year is less than 10 per cent of that for last year, the road's monthly report shows.

The road said the December deficit was $245,278 after fixed charges and $284,116 after contingent charges, but before capital and sinking funds payments. For the month in 1956, the road reported income of $452,672 and $413,509 respectively in the categories. The road, in a statement, said the effect of fixed expenses, particularly in New Jersey passenger service and property taxes, had contributed largely to the deficit in spite of rigid economies on controllable expenses in operations and maintenance. The adverse December results reduced net income to 26 cents per share for the year, the road said.

The road's net income for 1957 was $892,650 after fixed charges as compared to $5,553,743 for 1956, and was $492,614 after contingent charges, but before capital and sinking fund payments, as against $5,081,520 in 1956.

Gunman's Flight Ends

PARKERSBURG, W.Va., Jan. 23 (AP)—The sensational flight of a Virginia gunman, accused of killing one woman and wounding two others, ended placidly in a sudden briar patch near Parkersburg today.

Police Chief Gerald Sinnett of Vienna — pop. 6,000 — wet and weary after an all-night chase, spied the object of his pursuit lying flat on his stomach, peering ahead of him.

Shotgun The chief brandished his sawed-off shotgun and ordered him to surrender.

Sydney James McCormick, 25, of Lynchburg, Va., sullen but unarmed, struggled to his feet.

Virginia officers accused him of killing his ex-wife's grandmother, Mrs. Alma Walton Davis, 66, wounding Mrs. Davis' daughter, Mrs. Alma Davis Powell, 33, and his ex-wife, Mrs. Beverly Jean McCormick, 19.

Bell Telephone Official Reveals Growth In Operation Of Long Distance Lines In U.S.

EUGENE D. Lavery, Bell Telephone Co. of Pennsylvania representative, spoke on "Distant Dialing" at yesterday's luncheon meeting of the Rotary Club at the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

Lavery told his audience that in 1920 it took approximately 17 minutes to complete a long distance call, while today the same call is completed in less than one minute.

He explained that to make customer dialing of long distance numbers possible, the United States and Canada have been divided into 100 districts, each with a three-digit code number.

Pennsylvania has four districts with Scranton as the center of one. To complete a long distance call where such equipment has been installed, the customer first dials the code number for whichever city he wants, then the two letters and five digits of the number of the telephone being called.

Lavery illustrated his talk with a demonstration of electronic equipment, including a machine which showed the routing of a telephone call from Stroudsburg to Seattle, Wash., in one second. The telephone ringing in Seattle could be clearly heard by the audience.

Lavery said that despite electronic advances, operators will always be needed to handle person to person calls. William Peterson acted as chairman and introduced the speaker.

Cadillac

World's Best Answer to a Detour!

Pretty rough road, you'd say? Well, you certainly wouldn't be aware of it if you were sitting where these happy travelers are.

For they're riding in a new 1958 Cadillac—and here, without a doubt, is the world's best substitute for a new highway!

Just what is this special Cadillac magic that works such wonders on a rough roadway? Well, let's take a look and see what happens to a bump when it meets the wheels of a new 1958 Cadillac.

First of all, it is softened by big, buoyant Cadillac tires... then it is gently cushioned by those massive, perfectly balanced Cadillac coil springs

... or, if the extra-cost option of air suspension is present, it is subdued by that miraculous cushion of air that cradles the frame... then it is diminished still further by Cadillac's new hydraulic shock absorbers and by its specially engineered system of rubber body mountings.

And, of course, should any suggestion of it still remain, it meets its final demise in those deep, luxurious, Fleetwood-crafted seat cushions... and in the car's marvelous steadiness and balance.

All in all, this is just one more good reason why a journey in a new Cadillac is the finest distance between any two points.

We invite you to try it—and to get the full facts about all of the new Cadillacs, including the distinguished Eldorado Brougham.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

We are, I sadly fear, reaching the saturation point of meetings, and special events. The fifth Monday of each month is usually free of regularly scheduled meetings. Therefore it is a popular night for scheduling special events.

The trouble is there is only one fifth Monday in a month and about five events waiting to pounce on it as an open date. The Woman's Club maintains a clearing house calendar so that organizations can avoid head-on clashes.

Not always successfully, as note this coming Monday when the Tulsa Choir Concert and the open meeting of the League of Women Voters are both appealing to many of the same people, while that is also the night when all the members of the East Stroudsburg Jointure PTA's are invited down to Smithfield and when Hamilton PTA holds its regular meeting.

Just off-hand I can think of quite a few people who would be interested in attending at least three of the four events.

Off hand or on hand, I can't think of what the solution might be, so there really isn't much point in mentioning it, except it's like the weather. A recurring phenomena that you can't do much about except deplore.

I wish we could have done something about yesterday's weather, because it was so perfectly what everybody wanted that we could all stand a repeat dose. Cold enough for ice skating without being too cold for comfort. Though I suppose people remembering the good old days for ski trains and dog sleds in the Poconos would like about two feet of powdery snow on the slopes—with perfectly clear roads, of course.

Panel On Careers Draws 150 To PTA Meeting At Chestnuthill School

Brookheadville — More than 150 persons attended the PTA meeting on Thursday to hear a panel present "Schools Do Help Students to Select Careers," despite ice weather.

Mrs. Grace Thompson, moderator of the panel, in her introduction said that there is a definite plan of guidance from the first day of the school for every child. Beginning in the first grade, I.Q. tests and then achievement tests are given every year. After being given for several years, these tests show a definite pattern of each child's strong points.

When the child enters the ninth grade, each student's strong characteristics are noted and a schedule is planned to develop his abilities to the fullest capacity. Every student is kept in close contact all through High School by the teachers, recommending and encouraging every sincere student to enter a worthwhile career of their choice.

Panelists included Greta Ewe, Edythe Achey, Mrs. Jeannette Mitchell and Mrs. Wally Butz.

Teaching — Greta Ewe spoke on teaching as a career, outlining the requirements and qualifications of a teacher.

A high scholastic standing in school may enable a student to receive a scholarship, she said, and the scholarship may mean the difference between going or not going to college. She also told of the great need for teachers and the expectation of the need for 135,000 teachers by 1960.

THE READER TALKS BACK

Dear Wyckoff Shopper,
I read your column regularly, and it has paid off in enjoyment and in keeping posted as to what my wife should be paying for all the frivolous "necessities" of being a woman. One line in your article of Saturday was of itself well worth all the time I've spent as a reader. Where you said you were not accustomed to retiring "all greased up like a pig at a county fair."

My wife, bless her, is always complaining I do not treat her as I did on our honeymoon. Aside from the fact I am now some 40 years older, may I point out that she is not the same girl I took on that trip to Niagara? I cannot recall that she was all slicked up then, or that her head resembled a pin cushion or a Porcupine. How, I would like to know, would she feel if I did up my few remaining hairs in curlers, oiled my face, tied a chin strap on, and asked for a goodnight kiss?

I love my wife, but not for the way she wears her hair. I'm comfortable in her company, and while she apparently doesn't believe me, I've grown accustomed to her face and see no need for improvement. If I did not love her, her beauty treatments would scare me off, and I am not the only married man to feel this way. Glamour is for some other woman. Not my wife. If she must cold-cream her face and curl-pin her hair, can't she do it during the morning when I'm at work? To this she says, "WHAT! And have the grocer and milk man see me?"

I ask you—who's more important? So I showed her your column, and she said, "I read it, and I suggest you ask the Wyckoff Shopper for her telephone number." With her permission, and kindest regards, I hereby do so.

In warm sincerity,
A Daily Reader

Dear Daily Reader,
Thank you for both your constancy and your letter. I've been chuckling ever since it arrived. It was the lift I needed.

Alliance Adopts Race Resolution

POCONO MANOR — The North American Council of the World Presbyterian Alliance closed its conference at the Inn here yesterday by electing new officers and adopting a resolution on race relationship.

In essence, the resolution condemns the use of the Church to support any program designed to abrogate or abolish laws and court decisions relating to race segregation.

The Church is in error, the resolution says, when it commits itself to a program designed to deny the right of any person to be treated as a child of God by allowing the use of churches to frustrate laws specifically devised to protect civil rights.

The conference recommended that churches of the alliance take steps to "give encouragement, counsel and material aid to ministers and other churchmen who are victims of reprisals because of their courageous advocacy of civil rights for all citizens."

The resolution, which was passed after considerable discussion, was drafted by Dr. Paul C. Payne, prominent Presbyterian official.

Elected chairman of the North American Alliance was Rev. James I. McCord, of Austin, Texas. The new vice chairman is Rev. William Babinsky, of Ridgewood, N. J.

Re-elected were Rev. Eugene Osterhaven, Holland, Mich.; recording clerk, Rev. Ralph W. Lloyd, Maryville, Tenn.; secretary and John Viskor, Milwaukee, Wis., treasurer.

On the other hand, "once in its native soil, and now standing over against it, is the Christian faith, core of whose message is deliverance, or salvation," he told the Christian Education Council of the Congregational Christian Churches commencing sessions here.

Rev. Powell, pastor of First Congregational Church, Oak Park, and executive committee member of the denomination's Board of Home Missions, found "this sense of extremity about our culture, about our whole way of life," itself to be "a saving factor. For by it we may, for the first time, come to grips with the deepest insights of the Christian faith. . . . Things have gone far enough now, even as they did in the times of the Old Testament prophets, to say our culture's deepest need is not for more persuasive pleas in support of reason, intelligence, common sense, not for exhortation or mere encouragement, but for deliverance," he declared.

Urging the Christian educators present from across the nation "persuasively, vigorously" and "quickly as possible to relate 'the goodness of deliverance and salvation to a sick and troubled culture,'" Mr. Powell warned: "If we can't do it, there are no other human agents to do so. The time has come for judgment to begin with the household of God," he quoted.

OFF THE RECORD

THERE IS A distinct possibility that the next set of Pocono Twp. and Barrett High will take place at either Stroudsburg or East Stroudsburg High gymnasium.

The Tannersville five and Barrett are scheduled to meet Tuesday, Jan. 28 on Pocono High's floor.

The contest, as the standings now show, will in all probability decide the championship in the Monroe Scholastic circuit.

A standee-crowd will be the theme if the game is played in Tannersville, and Pocono officials are attempting to get a court, with a seating capacity, which will house the expected over-flow.

The final decision on whether to play the tilt on the Mountaineers' or Cavaliers' hardwoods will be made this week.

Carl (Corky) Smith, East Stroudsburg High's stellar halfback of '57, gained honorable mention on the Wigan Club's All-America Prep School Football Team.

Smith, who also was a member on the AP and Harrisburg Patriot-News all-state eleven, joins the nation's top schoolboys in getting laurels for grid performances during the past season.

John Chisdek, of Scranton Central, was named on the second team as fullback.

Warren (Mag) Loney reports plans are well advanced for the Varsity "S" Donkey basketball spectacle at Stroudsburg High's gymnasium Saturday night, Feb. 8.

Loney, "S" proxy, says there is only one problem facing the local scholastic sports-backing group—the finding of long-eared animals strong enough to carry some of the players with extra adipose tissues.

"These donkeys will take only so much," Loney said. "The players committee chairman, John Whitehead, has lined up will have to take off some weight by game time."

Members of the Stroudsburg High faculty and the various service organizations in the area will supply the players, along with "volunteers" from the "S" club.

Wyckoff-Sears Upsets P-K, 65-39

First Industrial League Loss In 2 Years For P-K

PATTERSON-KELLEY suffered its first Industrial League setback in two years at the Stroudsburg YMCA last night when an up and down Wyckoff-Sears five rose to an overwhelming 65-39 victory over the loop's pacesetters.

W-S, 3-5 on the season before last night's duel, stopped a current winning streak of P-K at eight with its fourth triumph.

Bill Marean lead the onslaught against the league leaders, ripping through 17 field goals and four fouls for 38 points. Bill Carson also aided with 10.

Jim Fralley, with 12, and Clair Bloss, with 10, were the leading point-getters for P-K.

Wyckoff-Sears picked up a one-point lead, 11-10, in the first period and then kept increasing the spread the rest of the way. A 23-point spree in the final period salted the game away.

Becoming Clergyman In United States Easy Task In Some Forms Of Religion

By George W. Cornell
Associated Press Religion Writer
A MAN can become a clergyman in this country about as easily and quickly as he can say "the Rev. John J. Jones."

And many do. "It's an amazing situation," said Frank Ketcham, a Washington, D.C., attorney, who is pressing the churches for joint action to set up some over-all minimum standards.

But there are delicate issues involved. The regular denominations, of course, do have extensive requirements for entering their own ministries, but outside their domains, the field is wide open.

In Business
"About all that a man has to do is give himself the title and he is in business," Ketcham said. "Almost any man in almost any state can do it."

The clerical designation, Ketcham notes, can provide a man with various privileges. He can, if he gets followers, collect contributions, so far as the law generally goes, perform marriages, get discounts at stores, lower fares on railroads and some airlines and he can don clerical garb and use the prestige that goes with it.

He can, by establishing a religious organization as not for private gain, invest his collections in tax-free real estate, buildings and other property.

Why is it so simple for a person, no matter what his qualifications or lack of them, to assume the role of priest or preacher?

Mostly, the answer lies in the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, forbidding any law regarding an "establishment of religion."

States generally adhere to the idea, except for minor regulations, and leave religion free of barriers or restrictions. The result in some instances, Ketcham said, has "amounted in effect to religious license for religious racketeers designed to enrich the pockets of their practitioners."

Ketcham, an active Congregational Christian layman and counsel for agencies of several denominations, doesn't advocate changing the laws. They're an essential of democratic freedoms, he said.

But he said the churches can, and should, take steps to set up a mutual system to safeguard the Christian ministry — and prevent its abuses.

"The evils of the situation are growing," he said. "Our people are anxious and troubled. They will turn to almost anyone who sounds plausible to them in their anxieties.

"As Christians, we should not permit them to be victimized and damaged, both spiritually and physically, by charlatans and frauds."

Ketcham, an expert on church legal problems, said the denominations should get together and work out minimum educational standards for the entire ministerial profession. This, he said, would serve as a national accrediting guide.

Church Opposition

But, he added, church opposition to the plan is strong and widespread. "They're afraid any requirements might muzzle some preacher who would do some good," Ketcham said.

"They say, 'Suppose he has the message? Suppose the Lord is using him? How do we know? That's the stopper.'"

He said that in the past, a self-styled minister, lacking training or preparation, couldn't affect or exploit many people outside the regular churches, but that broadcasting has changed that picture.

"Before, the harm he could do was pretty much limited," Ketcham said. "But now, on the air, he can reach huge audiences. By holding himself out as a minister and appealing to anxieties, he can make substantial amounts of money."

Millions of dollars are collected this way each year, Ketcham estimated. "In my opinion, some of these individuals also do untold damage to the emotional well-being of hundreds of thousands of people."

Navigator, Pilot Fight For Controls

LONDON, Jan. 23 (AP)—The story of a pilot and navigator wrestling for the controls of a diving jet bomber, each thinking the other was "drunk" from lack of oxygen, has been made public by the Air Ministry.

The mix-up of a Royal Air Force crew happened a few weeks ago. The two-man crew of a Canberra bomber was ordered to take the twin-jet plane up to 35,000 feet. The trouble started at 30,000.

The intercom broke down. The pilot didn't know this. All he knew was that he heard some mumbling from the navigator's end, then his name being called out, and silence. Strange behavior, he thought. Then an explanation flashed into his mind. Anoxia—involuntary loss of consciousness, which occasionally afflicts airmen at a high altitude.

Denser Air

"Must get the chap back to normal," he thought, and put the plane into a dive toward denser air, bending determinedly over the controls.

The navigator was puzzled why they should be diving, as they were supposed to go higher. He rushed to the controls and saw the pilot bending, checking his instruments, and thought he had fallen into a slump.

Strange behavior, he thought. Then an explanation flashed into his mind—anoxia.

He grabbed at the controls, and the two men wrestled as the plane dove. Unable to win control, the navigator switched on the pilot's emergency oxygen supply, and stepped back to let it take effect. The pilot leveled out the plane at 15,000 feet.

Then the two men looked at each other and began sorting it all out in the officer's mess, where the story started to get around.

"It seems that they were both just a bit mixed up, I'm afraid," an Air Ministry spokesman said. No names were given.

Corn Off The Cob

HILLSDALE, Mich., Jan. 23 (AP)—Because a passing motorist was not fast enough and a police car turned on a wrong street, the Hillsdale Elks Temple was land-scaped with corn on the cob today.

An unidentified driver saw Rich. and Flint, 27, driving his truck-trailer with a loose hitch and, failing to attract Flint's attention, flagged a passing police cruiser.

As the cruiser went down a wrong way street in pursuit of the truck, the hitch gave way in front of the Elks Temple. The trailer turned over, dumping 500 bushels of corn in all directions.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 6. If the number is less than 6, add 6. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
